

BUZZ BANDS

Sounds from family vacations

In the '70s, Dave Einmo's father shot Super 8 films of family vacations to New York and Paris. The films are "sound collages from all over the world," says Einmo, the Seattle-based musician who operates solo as Head Like a Kite. Describing a reel shot at New York's Rockefeller Center, Einmo says, "It sounds like something Boards of Canada would've spent a month recording but it just happens to be live."

Einmo, who also plays guitar in the indie outfit Sushirobo, heavily samples from his family's movies on the sonic tapestry of "Random Portraits of the Home Movie," Head Like a Kite's debut effort.

With guitar, synths and live drums, Einmo, who's created soundtracks for small films, keeps the mood playful and light. "I thought a lot about how these songs would play live. . . . I wanted people to be excited and dancing."

True to his word, Einmo will perform with a live drummer at Sea Level Records on Sunday, plus a live set on air at KXLU-FM (88.9) and Cinespace's DIM MAK party on Tuesday.

Recommended downloads

- Download Ill Lit's "The Bridge in Tracy" at www.myspace.com/illlit
- Download the Hold Steady's "Chips Ahoy!" at www.boysandgirlsinamerica.com/about
- Download Head Like a Kite's "Tell Mommy You Want a Sip of Beer" at www.headlikeakite.com